MAJOR RESEARCH PROJECT (MRP)/MA THESIS REGISTRATION FORM

MAJOR RESEARCH PROJECT (MRP): The MRP (EAS1150Y) counts as 1.0 FCE. Students who wish to write an MRP must, with the help of the Graduate Coordinator, identify a supervisor from among East Asian Studies faculty and receive their agreement to supervise by the end of February of the first year.

The MRP is a research paper that is approximately 40-60 pages in length and deals substantially with sources in East Asian languages. The MRP is graded (letter grade).

MA THESIS: The thesis (EAS1250Y) counts as 1.0 FCE. Students who wish to write a thesis must, with the help of the Graduate Coordinator, identify a thesis supervisor from among East Asian Studies faculty and receive their agreement to supervise by the end of February of the first year.

The East Asian Studies MA thesis is written in close consultation with the supervisor. It is approximately 60-80 pages in length and deals substantially with sources in East Asian languages. The supervisor will decide if the thesis is deemed worthy of acceptance and will recommend conferral of the MA degree to the Graduate Coordinator. These are graded as CR/NCR; they do not receive a letter grade. The final thesis is uploaded to a public thesis repository.
